Prosecuting Attorney Webber Absent From Office on Secret Mission Several Days—Whereabouts Revealed Today—Securing Information for Grand Jury Probe

ELYRIA—Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence Webber, has been absent from his office since Monday, and it is believed that he is on a secret mission of some kind. Inquiry at his office as to his whereabouts with no response, his office stating that he could not tell, that he would not be back before Friday or Saturday.

From another source it is learned that he is in Columbus, and it is believed that he is there in consultation with State officials regarding the coming grand jury investigation of vice conditions at Lorain.

It is known that a strong effort is being made to have Mayor Grall, Lorain, removed by the government as a result of the recent raid made by government prohibitionists. Reports have also been circulated regarding the receiving of $100,000 by certain members of the police department. It is believed that the prosecutor is getting what information and help he can from State officials along the line he is pursuing during the coming grand jury probe.

UNCERTAIN AS TO TIME OF PRESENTING DEMAND

ELYRIA—The committee from the Lorain County Ministerial Association who were delegated to wait on Prosecuting Attorney Lawrence Webber to ascertain what action he intends to take regarding the resolution passed by them last week calling upon him to close picture shows that are operating on Sunday in violation of law, have not yet been able to see the prosecutor, who has been out of town.

Rev. W. S. Smith, of the United Presbyterian church, who is a member of the committee states that he has not yet been notified as to when the committee will meet to present their demands. They expected to do so on Friday but cannot on account of the absence of the prosecutor.

FE CLAIMS HUSBAND IS EXTREMELY CRUEL

ELYRIA—Florence Gerber, of this city, filed an action for divorce from Frederick Gerber. She states that she received $1000 from the U. S. government on the death of her soldier brother and has expended most of it in killing her husband's obligations, in buying household furniture.

April 11 he broke into their home on Hazel street and removed certain household articles and she is the court to issue an injunction restraining him from selling goods, alimony, divorce and the custody of their child.

Jackie Weir, of Lorain, sang a number of songs and danced to his heart's content, while Louis Cravath and Al. Wilker, also of Lorain, gave character sketches and skits that pleased those present.

The meeting was largely attended, there being a delegation of Elks from Ashland, Lorain and several other cities present, about sixty in number.

Leader of Irish Freedom Society Says DeValera Is Mad With Egotism

BOSTON, April 27.—The charge at Eamonn De Valera president of the Irish republic was a "man who came with egotism and a pretension" who deliberately split the Irish movement in America, is stated in a statement made here by the right Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., national president of the Irish Freedom Society.

GIRLS OF SENIOR CLASS AGREE UPON RULES FOR GRADUATION DRESSES

ELYRIA—For the first time in the history of the high school regulations for the girls' dresses for Baccalaureate and commencement have been adopted. A week or so ago the suggestion was made to the senior girls that they wear white middie and skirts for the Baccalaureate sermon, but they strenuously objected and the matter was dropped for the time. Again yesterday afternoon the senior girls were summoned to a meeting and the matter brought up a little differently and more forcibly. The regulations as to Baccalaureate were not adopted as suggested above, but were decided in this way. The dresses may be of any bright color desired, but must be of some cotton goods. The regulations for graduation are very similar, except that the dresses will be white. Like the others, they must be of cotton goods, either Swiss, net, voile or organdy. They must measure 12 inches from the floor and have sleeves to the elbow. The cost must not exceed $15. Contrary to the reception of the first proposal a week ago, most of the girls readily agreed to the requirements. This is the first time anything of this nature has ever been accepted by a graduating class here, but now that the ice is broken it will, no doubt, become a custom for every class.

Elyria People Having New or Repair Operations Saving Thousands of Dollars Through Direct Contact With Union Crafts--New Plan Working Well

ELYRIA—Many inquiries as to the present status of the Elyria building tie-up have reached the Chronicle-Telegram within the past few days. Some of these inquiries are caused by people who contemplate either repairs or new building work, and who are anxious to find out what the prospects for re-employment are. Others are making inquiries because of their intention to award work immediately, but desire to have the same done as economically and by those most meriting the contract, irrespective of whether this be a contractor or an individual mechanic. For the information of the Elyria public it should be stated that strenuous efforts have been made to bring both contractors and union men together on some basis of amicable settlement, but so far success is not in sight.

At the various meetings the information was forthcoming that the carpenters, plumbers, electricians, and in fact all other crafts were receiving from their employers a sum varying from 90 cents to $1.05 per hour for their work. It was further brought to light that the contractors on the other hand were charging the public from $1.50 to $1.65 per hour for each mechanic's work, which, according to the statements made by the committee representing the employers' association, was necessary in order to cover their overhead expense. Thus, if 10 carpenters worked on a

Conciliators Prevail Upon German Foreign Minister to Remain Until After Present Crisis Is Passed—Reichstag Members Bitter in Criticism of Indemnity Offer

By FRANK E. MASON
U. S. Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, April 27.—Dr. Walter Simon, German foreign minister, has tendered his resignation to President Ebert as a result of the bitter opposition of the industrial interests against the new indemnity proposals, but the president refused to accept the resignation.

Conciliators from various political parties have requested Dr. Simon to remain in office until the reparations negotiations are concluded.

Members of the reichstag were hostile in their criticism of the indemnity offer.

It was learned from a high source, that Secretary of state Hughes, after perusing the contents of the German note communicated with the German government asking that amendments be added to the original document making some points more definite. The American secretary of state also was reported to have asked for better guarantees from Germany and some of the conditions she struck out.

The German offer is capitalized at 50,000,000 gold marks (about $12,000,000,000) but a total of 200,000,000,000 gold marks is promised by the time that all the interest payments are made. No definite time was fixed for the expiration of the payments.

Germany proposed that she participate in the reconstruction of northern France.

SPIRITUAL WELFARE OF CHILD IS DISCUSSED

ELYRIA—The morning session of the final day of the Lorain County Sunday School Association at the first Congregational church today was devoted to an address by Miss Ada R. Demerest, superintendent of the children's division, of the State Association, who discussed "The Church and Her Children."

Miss Demerest, an interesting speaker declared that in her opinion the child was the most interesting citizen of the state. In the old days a man could write to Washington and get information regarding how to care for his live stock, but a mother could secure no information as to how to care for her child.

However, child welfare, and child conservation is being looked after by the government, and great good has resulted. She declared that the church and the home must take care of the spiritual welfare of the children, and the responsibility was placed directly upon their shoulders.

Children should be kept in the Sunday school and the methods of teaching should be of such a character as to be able to interest the child, and hold its attention.

She spoke for half an hour, and gave expression to many ideas of a practical nature.

Prof. E. S. Kerr, who was scheduled for an address, was unable to be present and E. P. Poste, and Mrs. Margaret Mueller explained the methods employed by the First Congregational Sunday School in the conduct of the young people's department, showing how the fundamentals of religious training were brought out.

The balance of the morning was spent in divisional conferences in the various class rooms. The convention will close this afternoon.

SALARY ITEM OF EXPENDITURE BY STATE DEPARTMENTS JUMP

Finance Committee Whipping Appropriation Bill Into Shape—Governor May Have to Exercise Preogative of Adjourning Legislature—Grinding Bills Through Hopper

COLUMBUS, O., April 27.—Following approval of the administrative reorganization bill Tuesday by Gov. Davis the senate finance committee was whipping into shape for introduction the biennial appropriation bill to conform to the reorganization program.

Because of the fact that under reorganization many new positions may be created, others abolished and salaries revised, members of the finance committee found it would be impossible to make definite appropriations for the various positions.

It was decided to set aside practically $1,000,000 to be used by the controlling board in building the new organization.

By taking care of the building fund for the state universities and state institutions under the control of the board of administration or department of welfare through a state levy, the finance committee it was believed will be able to make material reductions in the general appropriations bill.

It was brought to light Tuesday that this measure instead of proving an economy will in reality increase the salary expenditures by $114,000, annually.

Brand Bill Passes House

Approximately $35,000,000 raised by the state school levy will also be eliminated from the appropriations bill by the passage of the Brand bill changing the school levy. The Brand bill passed the house Tuesday. It has passed the senate in the calendar.

The appropriations bill carried a total of $91,000,000 when it passed the house. The total will be considerably less when it reaches the senate this week.

Gov. Davis probably will be put in position to use a constitutional prerogative seldom, if ever, used by an Ohio governor. He may have the opportunity of adjourning the general assembly.

Indications Tuesday night were that the two houses will never agree on a final adjournment date, in which case, the constitution gives the governor the authority to adjourn them.

The Republican members of the house last night in caucus decided to adjourn sine die on May 12. The Republican members of the senate, decided not to adjourn sine die, but merely to recess until next January after they have completed the work of the present session.

House to Recess Saturday

The Republican house caucus decided to recess Saturday and then return on May 12, finish up its business of signing bills, etc., and then adjourn without date.

The joint resolution providing final adjournment probably will be introduced and acted upon by the house this week.

Senate leaders hope by merely recessing that they will be enabled to return next January and enact taxation legislation if the voters approve a constitutional taxation amendment which they hope to submit at the November election, and transact any other business which they may deem advisable.

In case final adjournment is taken, it will be up to the governor to reconvene the assembly and nothing then could be acted upon except as requested by the chief executive in special messages.

Gov. Davis desires both houses to adjourn sine die. For this reason it is expected he may use his power to adjourn them in case the senate insists on merely recessing and the house votes to quit without date.

Would Cut County Officials' Term

In contrast to the term-lengthening and term-extending bills for county officials, there appeared in the legislature today a bill to decrease the term of a county official.

Such a measure, introduced by Representative Lytle of Medina county, would decrease the term of county auditors from four to two years, beginning with the election in 1922.

There are bills before the legislature to increase terms of all other county officials from two to four years.

School teachers who break their contracts with boards of education by quitting their positions without notice may be penalized by having their certificates to teach revoked for the remainder of the term for which they are employed, if Gov. Davis signs the bill by Representative Kirk of Ottawa county, which passed the senate today.

The Bing bill amending compulsory school attendance laws, by providing for appointment of co-attendance officers or truant officers in the rural districts, the establishment of part time schools in districts where twenty-five or more pupils are out of school on work certificates and making the age limit for both boys and girls sixteen years, passed the senate today. The bill has already passed the house and now goes to the governor for his approval.

Extender Bill Killed

Danger that the term extender bill for prosecuting attorneys might be placed on the calendar was narrowly averted in the Republican caucus last night.

This measure would give all county prosecutors now in office a four-year term. It is strongly recommended by Maurice Maschke and Peter Dur, organization leaders from Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Many Republican house members are committed to vote for the bill if it ever comes on the floor of the house for a record vote. Similarly, a record vote in the caucus would have forced enough favorable votes for the bill to put it on the calendar.

The rising vote, however, was 42 for tabling the bill and 28 for instructing the steering committee to keep it off the calendar.

Minimum Wage Killed

The senate committee on manufacturing and commerce tonight killed the Schrimper minimum wage bill for women and minors recommended by the substitute bill introduced by Senator Chatfield of Hamilton county, which, supporters of the Schrimper bill said, they would oppose.

The substitute bill provides that the lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer of state, auditor of state and attorney general shall constitute the minimum wage commission.

Without going into other details advocates of the minimum wage bill said the first section of the bill which names elective state officers on the minimum wage committee was enough to condemn it.

Senator Brand of Champaign county who had been counted on to vote to recommend for passage of the Schrimper bill, declared the supporters of this bill last night

Men Who Refuse to Give Information On Liquor Selling Face Jury Probe

ELYRIA—John McDonald and William Simms failure to tell the court where they obtained intoxicating liquors which resulted in each being fined $5 on an intoxication charge Wednesday, resulted in Mayor Jones making the court statement that persons who refuse to give full information will have their names given to the grand jury for further investigation.

Mayor Jones said that testimony before the grand jury must be accurately made and in case perjury is committed the violator faces a penitentiary sentence.

Mayor Jones said he is satisfied that the men bought the liquor in Elyria. Simms said a friend from Cleveland came to Elyria with the liquor. The mayor said the name given by Simms was fictitious.

According to the assertion of Mayor Jones Simms will likely be called before the grand jury when it convenes next week. Mayor Jones says he is determined to break up the securing of liquor question arose as to what the contractor contemplated charging the public providing the union men agreed to the demands of the contractor for a 20 per cent reduction. The reply invariably was "that the only reduction that would be made would be the 20 per cent demanded of the union men."

UNION MEN WILLING TO ACCEPT WAGE CUT

Margin of Profit Unchanged
In plain language this means that the contractor who formerly paid his men $1 per hour and charged for that man's work $1.50 per hour would pay the man under the new arrangement 80 cents per hour, and charge the public $1.30 per hour, thus leaving his profits proportionately as large as they were before the reduction in wages was asked.

Quoting from a speech made by one of the executive committee of a local union at one of these meetings: "Wages must be lowered to increase building, but the one man who is to lower anything is he who furnishes the material, and the mechanic who does the work while the contractor goes merrily along, exacting the same margin of profit from the public as has been in vogue during the period of the war and since its termination."

Union Men is Willing.
The present status summed up is that the union men are perfectly willing to reduce their hourly wage, while the contractor has not shown the same willingness, and therefore no compromise is likely. The mechanics' contention is as follows: "If we reduce our wages from $1 to 80c per hour the contractor should reduce his charges from $1.50 to $1.10 per hour in order to make an equal 20 per cent reduction. If we reduce our wages to 90c per hour the contractor should reduce his charges to $1.30 per hour, thus permitting all concerned to share equally in the reduction of costs to the prospective builder, for the abnormal building costs today are not due entirely to the pay that is given the mechanic as is evidenced by the above comparisons."

In the meanwhile the union electricians, carpenters, plumbers, painters, etc., are working independently while all of the crafts have practically formed the supervision of men specially fitted, and who previously held responsible foremanships for the various contractors who have locked them out.

Craftsmen Accept Work.

These various union craftsmen have undertaken work of every nature in the city of Elyria, and are saving the Elyria public a great many dollars on the work they are actually doing for there is no charge made for supervision or estimates and there are no profits made on the supplies purchased for the work. The original invoices for supplies are paid by the party for whom the work is being done, while at the same time only the union scale is charged by the men working on the job. Thus if you employed a carpenter to build a garage, instead of paying a contractor $1.50 per hour for this work you will pay the men personally but $1 an hour for this work, to say nothing of the saving on material.

According to reports at union headquarters this morning there were less than thirty unemployed union men complaining all the crafts that were not engaged on work of some kind. It was further stated this morning that savings amounting to hundreds of dollars had been created for the Elyria public as a result of this method of doing work in the various crafts. It was pointed out at this time that on one house-screening job that had been estimated by a contractor at $135, the work complete, including the material and supervision, actually cost $57.

Evidence of Saving
Another demonstration of the saving was given in the work on a concrete walk that was estimated at $62 above its actual cost on completion. One hundred seventeen dollars were saved on one job where three carpenters worked for a period of two weeks.

No answer received yet from the contractors. One union official was as follows: "We are not fighting the fight of organized labor alone. We are not fighting purely for the maintenance of our organizations, we are fighting the fight of the citizens of Elyria, to secure work for the last six months to support a family of a wife, a daughter and twelve years, a son ten, a daughter six, and a ten months' old son."

That the employers' association is determined to put all obstacles possible in the way of a settlement between individual crafts and their respective employers for substantial at the last meeting held, at which time the carpenters' committee (with full power to act) were advised: "We will not settle with any individual craft for when we settle we will settle with all."

No answer received yet from the contractors. This assertion of the carpenters met with their employers, and offered to compromise on a 50-50 basis. The contractors agreed to advise their employees as to their acceptance of this proposition, but in the meantime the fact that two days have passed since this promise was made, the executive committee of the carpenters have heard nothing from the carpenter contractors. The electricians likewise met with their employers, who refused to budge from their demand for a 20 per cent cut for the employee with no similar cut, or in fact, any cut, for the employer.

This sums up the actual conditions as they exist in the Elyria building industry, presented from an unbiased point of view, and taken from the records of the mediator present at the various meetings held by both parties to the controversy.

AMHERST HOLDS IMPORTANT MEETING

The council met last night for the purpose of acting upon the paving issue. It was decided upon as to the form of contract to be used and it will be signed at the next meeting. Some difficulty arose over the irregularity of the incorporation line on Park avenue, and the council came to no definite conclusion. It was finally decided to authorize the street and sidewalk committee to confer with the township trustees at their meeting Monday night and arrange the matter in a manner satisfactory to all. It was also decided to try to secure the necessary number of names to pave Milan avenue beside the town hall. This matter will have to be decided between the council and trustees.

Another matter of importance which was discussed was the prohibiting of screens in soft drink parlors. The ordinance is the same as is used in Lorain and is modeled after that of all the larger cities. This bill prohibits the use of screens or any other construction to conceal the interior of any place selling beverages from view from the street. This bill was passed and is declared effective at the earliest date allowed by law.

and voted against the Schriener bill and for the substitute.

The vote on the Schriener bill stood 3 to 4. Those voting for the Schriener bill were Senators Sparks of Montgomery, Reynolds and Bender of Cuyahoga county. Voting against the bill were Senators Brand, Chatfield, Chappeler of Pickaway county and Emmert of Hamilton county.

All of the members of the committee agreed to report out the substitute bill after the Schriener bill had been killed.

The house tonight passed the bill by Boylston of Summit county, providing an additional common pleas judge for Summit county.

Five Million For Imbeciles
The state of Ohio Tuesday took toward strides to protect organized society against the menace of the imbecile and the criminal.

The senate enacted legislation that will provide in the next two years $5,000,000 part of which would be used for building at least two new institutions for the care of feeble minded and for repairing and enlarging existing institutions.

The house had on its calendar last night for early consideration the Gorrell bill to curb the power of the parole board, which, it has been widely charged has made little more than a mockery of penitentiary sentences because of a policy that has led to almost indiscriminate release of professional criminals.

Because of the absence of the author, Representative John W. Gorrell, Republican, of Carroll county, action on the bill was postponed until today.

Gov. Harry L. Davis has gone record as favoring both measures.

Will Raise Money by Tax Levy
The funds voted Tuesday by the senate to care for the 11,000 imbeciles who are at large in Ohio today—one of whom was responsible for the murder of two women teachers at Parma, near Cleveland, will be raised by a state tax levy of one quarter of a mill.

It will cost the man who pays taxes on $10,000, the amount of $2.50 a year; the man who pays taxes on $100,000 will pay $25.

The levy, outside all Smith law limitations, will run for two years and longer, if extended by a succeeding legislature. The proceeds from it will be available for no purpose other than specified in the law making the levy.

add to the facilities for caring for unfortunate wards of the state.

The senate, by a vote of 80 to 2, adopted the Whittemore resolution classifying property for taxation and limiting the tax rate municipalities to 18 mills and the outside municipalities to 10 mills.

Senator Burke, Republican, of Lorain county, announced that while the resolution did not suit him, he would vote for it in the hope that it would help the legislature somewhere in the effort to solve a taxation problem.

DRUGGISTS AND DOCTORS ASTONISHED AT WONDERFUL POWER OF NICOTOL TO STOP THE USE OF TOBACCO

To Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco Try These Simple Tests

New York: Mr. Tobacco User, any druggist will tell you that a remedy to be successfully sold must, above everything, possess merit, otherwise failure is inevitable. Nicotol, the famous remedy for the tobacco habit, was a success right from the start, simply because it quickly does the work promised. We publish a few letters from some of the best known druggists in the country to give you an idea of what they think of Nicotol, and you may rest assured that they would not permit the use of their names unless Nicotol was something out of the ordinary. The Peoples Drug Stores have five of the best stores in Washington, D. C. They write: "Since we have handled Nicotol the sale has been greater than that of all the rest of the articles of this nature which we have ever sold. The demand was so great that we were compelled to order a very large sale on same and it has been pending receipt of a shipment from you direct." Schramm, Johnson, who have six stores in Salt Lake City, say: "We take this opportunity of expressing ourselves relative to Nicotol. We have enjoyed a very large sale on same and it has given entire satisfaction to our customers. Jacob Brothers of Philadelphia, Pa., have this to say: "Our sales of Nicotol have passed our expectations. Our first order was placed in March and we were forced to re-order before the end of April. The sales have kept up well ever since. There is no doubt that we are receiving many repeat orders from our customers and many expressions of opinion regarding the your usual smoke, walk up the stairs at a regular pace then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff incessantly and who are seemingly healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been attracted had it not been for the use of tobacco to excess, and thousands would soon quit well if they would stop. The chief habit-forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison which when absorbed by the system, slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies with the use of it. One will be afflicted with general debility, others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness or even cancer of the common affection known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco to excess in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests: Read aloud one full page manuscript without a break. If you are unable to read clearly your throat is frequently clear your throat is affected by catarrh and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking

The Suggestion the Chauffeur Made to Lillian.

WITH his face as imperturbable as if he had not been a storm center for several minutes, Jones, the chauffeur, walked toward the car at his employer's grudging capitulation. He went through the same farce of attempting to start it as his employer had done, then he began a solemn and exhaustive survey of the engine. I was amused to see that his cholerical employer kept his tongue between his teeth, although it was plain to be seen that vitriolic words were trembling upon it.

"I'm sorry to say, sir," Jones said at last in the carefully respectful tone which I guessed was particularly maddening just then to the elderly man, "that this is going to take more time than I thought."

"How long?" his owner growled. "Perhaps twenty minutes," he returned. "I would suggest, sir, that you all walk up toward the big road. There will be a most unpleasant odor of gasoline and oil present."

Again I saw Ted's eyelids quiver in an almost imperceptible wink. I realized that he was fully aware of whatever the chauffeur was employing to get them all out of the way. But he turned and helped the three women out of the car, and dutifully started down the path in the wake of his strutting factotum.

"Oh, Mr. Ted!" Jones called before he was out of earshot. "If you'll come back in about five minutes, I'll be greatly obliged, sir. I'm afraid I need a little help here or there."

"But I don't!"

Ted waved his hand assentingly, and for a few seconds after the group of people had disappeared around the bend in the road, the chauffeur pretended to work assiduously at the car. Then, following an interval of nine minutes, he crossed swiftly to where we were standing.

"Beg pardon, madam," he said respectfully to Lillian, but I think I ought to tell you that Mr. Barker will make trouble for you if he possibly can. He never forgets a little thing like this, and if he can find a motorcar cop after he gets away from here, he'll go out of his way twenty miles to bring him back. I thought I'd tell you, and perhaps you'd like to try some other place. I guess you know that I can't take this car in less than five minutes if I want to—just disconnected a wire, but if you want to go away, I can keep it out of commission as long as I want. Mr. Ted's on, but he's a regular fellow. Mr. Ted is not a bit like his father! I called him back so the rest wouldn't suspect anything. Is there any way I can help you if you wish to go away?"

"But I don't wish to go away!" Lillian said lightly, flashing a merry glance at her employer. "Mr. Barker, who had crept frightened to her side, with a clasp of her arm. "Motorcar cops are most interesting persons, and in the next few minutes that interview one, especially if your employer happens to be present. But I thank you most heartily for your courtesy."

A Bit of Advice.

The man studied her frankly for a second, then I saw a sudden gleam of amused comprehension come into his eyes, but he made no comment. He looked at her respectfully and went back to his tinkering just before the son of his employer came rather hurriedly down the path.

The well-built youth, with more than his share of good looks, and the flush of embarrassment upon his cheeks made him a distinctly attractive picture as he came toward us taking off his hat with the exaggerated deference of the best type of college youth. "Allow me to apologize for my trouble," he asked with a winning manner. "It isn't a particularly pleasant thing for a fellow to have to do, but I cannot help it. I wish you to know how wrong I think their position was."

Lillian looked at him, a far different gaze than her eyes had held during our encounter with his father. I knew that the man's question was not one of mere curiosity, but that he was really as sincere as a child.

At the end of her scrutiny, Lillian smiled and extended her hand. The young man seized it eagerly.

"Don't give it another thought," Lillian said. "I don't think you're not to blame. And don't judge your father too harshly. He is simply a little more conservative than you are."

So long that he thinks it simply incredible that anyone should cross him. Unluckily for himself and everybody else, he cannot be put in a corner, and he is not a man who can be easily frightened. If there could be found a way to connect the two wires, I might be most satisfactory for him."

YOUR HEALTH

What Regularity Means in Achieving Good Long Life

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

THIS week I talked to a prominent official who has just completed eight years of the most strenuous public life. His name has appeared daily in every great newspaper; his word has been the final one in many matters of public concern.

During his term many of his associates have died in office, or have retired in broken health. He towers above his official intimates in health, vigor and unflinching good nature.

His hands are warm, his skin is aglow with health, his eyes are bright and his mind is alert and retentive. I wondered how he could have withstood the responsibilities, and come out so physically unscathed. In answer to my question about his physical habits, he gave me his program:

Out of bed at 7 o'clock. He gives himself one hour for bath, shaving and newspaper reading before breakfast. He walks for an hour.

Promptly at 1 o'clock, no matter how pressed he may be, he goes to lunch. Then he sits down to his work. During this hour he will not permit anyone to talk to him about business.

He returns to his office to work until 5 o'clock, at the window, never leaving until every paper is off his desk. He dines at 7 o'clock, and spends the evening in reading and self-improvement. There are no distractions, no telephone calls, and he has no hour or so of quiet before he goes to sleep.

On Sunday he gets up later, but is ready for church at 10 o'clock, eats his dinner in the middle of the afternoon, and takes no more food after that. Promptly at 5 o'clock on Sunday nights he goes to bed and awakens with no "Monday morning feeling" with which to start the week.

This is an unusual program, but the test of the program is in the result. It has carried him through a long and arduous career, and he is now in the prime of his life. He has come through 10 years of constant effort, and is ready to enter the competition of private life with no physical or mental handicap.

As I analyze this testimony there are several outstanding features. This man has a remarkable sense of proportion. He has realized the importance of dividing his time into several parts, and he has not permitted himself to be "sloped over." Business has been kept absolutely apart from the domain of the home. He has no social life, no family life, no life outside of his work.

Three Minute Journeys

WHERE HUGE EARRINGS ARE ALSO ATTACHED TO THE HAT.

IN the depths of Africa, deep in the heart of the mountains in northern Africa, there is to be found a strange race of people called "White Arabs." Among neighboring tribes they go by the name of "Shawia" and European scientists believe they are the descendants of an ancient white people who fled to these hills during times of trouble long ago, and there they lived through the anxious years.

Two Shawia Barbers.

Today these strange white people show a love of jewelry which is more oriental than their complexions would seem to warrant. Indeed, during a certain season, all the young women and the relative girls as well, borrow from the relatives a bit of jewelry to wear on their heads, and appear liberally weighted down with silver. The flashings of these trinkets and the gay colors of the dresses of the crowd are arresting in their effect.

The silver jewelry made by the native women is charming even in its crudity. Some of it is very dainty when one considers the tools with which they work. Not only do they melt silver and cast it, but they also beat silver bars and draw from these fine wires which they work into tiny links of chains, as used by all Arabs.

To these silver trinkets the natives sometimes bring their own silver. Offered in the form of money, they ask that the money be melted down and worked into the jewelry. This evidence of superstition seems not so strange to the workers, who placidly fill the order while the customer watches to make sure that the silver trinkets they have ordered.

Some of the jewelry is in the form of silver cups. These are designed to hold one or two small bunches of flowers, and are worn around the neck, and are suspended from silver chains, and hang in the sun.

The most astonishing bits of jewelry worn by these women, who are often all covered with silver, are the enormous earrings. They are made of silver and are attached to the sides of the head, and are so heavy that the ears cannot hold them for long. So silver chains are attached to the sides of the head, and the earrings are set into the head, thus relieving some of the weight from the ears of the smiling women who wear them.

JAPS FIRM IN CONTENTION THEY ARE SUPER RACE SAYS SPEAKER AT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

ELYRIA.—That the Japanese people believe that they are a super race and descended directly from the gods thereby making them superior to any other nation or people was the assertion of A. T. Arnold, general secretary of the Ohio Sunday School Association, in an address before the Lorain County Sunday School Association at the First Congregational church last evening.

Secretary Arnold was a delegate from Ohio to the World's religious convention held in Tokio recently and told his audience of some of the beliefs of the Japanese and some of his own conclusions.

He called attention to the great industry of the Jap, saying that both men and women are engaged at all times in constructive work of some kind. At present there are fifty-five million Japanese and they are increasing at the rate of $90,000 a year and have but 14,000,000 acres of tillable land and must find some place for their surplus population.

Being as they believe a super race, they assert they have a right to go where they please and when they please. They cannot understand the attitude of the United States towards them, in spite of the efforts made to explain that it was an industrial and not a racial question. Neither can they understand why the President does not hesitate to go to war even if they knew they would be defeated.

Speaking of the object of the great world's religious convention Mr. Arnold said that it was held in Tokio for the purpose of giving support to the missionary movement there, and establishing it in the position that it should occupy. He told of the wonderful reception given the delegates by the Japanese people, and the many courtesies extended by prominent men, some of whom were not Christians, but who recognized the work being done. He asserted that the church is now taking a more scientific attitude than ever before and are taking surveys and then analyzing them.

The result had shown that the church has fallen short of its full duty. In Ohio a survey has shown that more than 1,000,000 youth are receiving no religious instruction at all. If the church would succeed it must win the child life, or it will be lost. The Jap is open for religious education, but does not want sectarianism.

The speaker told of his visit to the Philippines and the wonderful work accomplished there under American rule during the past twenty one years. Illiteracy he said

17,000,000 Quarts

—and all equally delicious

SEVENTEEN million quarts of ice cream—and every quart of the same uniform quality! These seventeen million quarts of Telling's Ice Cream were made in Ohio, and eaten by Ohio people, last year.

There are two reasons why Telling's is so popular. One is that it is wholesome, delicious, and refreshing; the other is that it is always wholesome, delicious, and refreshing.

Telling's Ice Cream is going to be even more popular this year than ever before. Its unequalled quality and uniformity are making new friends all the time.

Let Telling's be your favorite refreshment during 1921!

DELIGHTFUL PERFORMANCE BEFORE PLEASSED AUDIENCE

To the great pleasure and gratification of an audience which flocked to the capacity of the high school auditorium, Tuesday evening, the orchestra of the local Council of the Knights of Columbus, made its bow in the fourth of the annual musical events. That those who attended were amply repaid for their presence was fully demonstrated by the applause which greeted each and every number.

It was not the profanity of applause of friends who felt their bounden duty to manifest pleasure but a spontaneous tribute to the ability shown by the several performers, either of the instrumental or vocal type.

The orchestra only added to its laurels by its spirited and intelligent interpretation of the numbers which were rendered and under the efficient and clever direction of Rev. John H. Frey gave a most excellent account of itself and clearly showed the painstaking course of rehearsal and faithful work which must have been necessary to bring the body of musicians up to the standard they displayed. Of the vocal numbers those of Mr. Bernard O'Donnell, John Whelton and Miss Rose Kirkbride were most pleasing from every point of view. Miss Kirkbride's renditions were particularly happy and gave an excellent opportunity for her to test the range and quality of her voice to the great gratification of the audience.

Alvin Bemis performance on the violin was no surprise. The witchery of this instrument was brought to its highest pitch by his very fine and artistic touch and the reception he received was well merited.

William Conrad also appeared to advantage in his violin numbers and bore out the calculation of his friends as to his mastery of the instrument.

Charles Guth, Jr., in his cornet number merited the greeting which he received and it was plain that he was no stranger to this most delightful of instruments.

The Imperial Philharmonic male Octet, made a very good impression and the only regret was that they did not appear oftener on the program. As it was their selections it a fine impression and only created a desire on the part of the audience to hear more of this well balanced musical body.

The clarinet number of Frank Verbeck and Zemo Graboske proved one of the features of the program.

In the accompanists, the performers the soloists were particularly fortunate in having such assistance in this important department from Mrs. Jack Hugs, Miss Gladys Locke, Earl Daniels and Miss Margarita Guth.

Colleges Offer Many Attractions

ELYRIA—All the colleges are preparing for a grand time and are making special arrangements for the coming spring festivals and June Commencement. Many Elyrians are interested in the near by colleges such as Oberlin and Baldwin-Wallace, Wesleyan, Bowling Green and Ohio State not mentioning others in the states that are attended by Elyrians. These annual affairs draw big crowds from all those who are in any way interested and a great many of the Elyria High graduates are taking college course, in either one of these colleges Baldwin-Wallace sends out interesting announcements which inform the public that the seventy-fifth jubilee of the college will be duly celebrated this year. The commencement will be in form of a pageant and on May Day which is to be held this year on May the 14th there will be a great festival with a May Queen to preside and a May Pole with colored ribbons, and all the students are to participate in this joyous celebration.

Reports come from the small but renowned college town of Oberlin, announcing a May festival in the form of a Musical. As is always the case when the Professors and other members of the faculty and the pupils start to plan anything they get the very best that is offered. This time it is the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra of which those in musical circles are in the habit of praising. Its performance in Elyria this previous winter season caused much comment, praise and the theatre, in which it played was filled to over-flowing capacity. Many are also planning to attend the commencement exercises in Oberlin and also "illumination night" has its own particular draw for Elyrians.

Delaware Ohio, sends invitations to several to attend their many attractions. Commencement is always a pompous affair and although there are no Elyrians about to leave its portals, a number are planning to attend the celebrations. Wooster College is also most courteous in its cordial invitations and it is a well known fact that any so interested can find plenty with which to amuse themselves during the first of the summer season and graduation time.

"Fads and Fancies" Musical Revue To Be Presented by Local Talent

ELYRIA—Never before has such an elaborate and extensive revue been attempted in Elyria as that pretentious musical causerie, "Fads and Fancies of 1921" this is to be presented at the Rialto Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 17 and 18 by the Daughters of Isabella.

The revue is the same type of show as the Follies, there being eight separate and complete scenes. A revue fabric that will please the eye for its originality and snappiness as well as the fact that there are no wails in the show, just one clever and amusing skit after another to please and entertain.

R. H. Underhill, of Chicago is in charge of the directing and staging of the revue, and his success in the staging of "Fads and Fancies" this year, an extremely clever and entertaining show is sure to result.

The main feature of the revue is the lack of the usual dressiness and sameness that is connected with those long-drawn-out, direction-way-thru-it types that you feel bound to see because someone you know is in it, but a revue that is worthy of praise on its own merit as an entertainer.

Tickets for the revue are on sale from all members of the D. of I. and are to be exchanged for reserved seats later.

FRIENDSHIP CLUB CO-ED PARTY

Elyria—A very interesting affair to many at present is the co-ed party, which the Senior Friendship Club is giving in the Gates School on Saturday evening. The two High Y clubs have accepted the cordial invitations which they have received to attend and all is in readiness for a splendid big party, and as is usual when these girls plan anything, there is something of a program being arranged by the social service committee which is in charge of proceedings. It begins at 7:30 sharp and starts off with a play, full of pep and comedy, which is under the direction of Miss Frances Snyder. Games and music have been planned for the rest of the evening's entertainment, but dancing will feature the greater part of it.

News Items From Oberlin College

The chief number of Oberlin's annual May festival will be Wagner's Lohengrin, sung by the Oberlin Musical Union, supported by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra. Dr. George W. Andrews conducting. Among the metropolitan soloists are Theo Karle, the noted tenor, Delphine March, mezzo-contralto, Lucy Van de Mark, Richard Bonelli and Robert Maitland.

The committee on graduate study and degrees awarded the Jackson Fellowship for 1921-22 to Miss Helen Martin, graduate of the class of '22.

In the death of Dr. G. Frederick Wright, noted geologist, theologian and educator, Oberlin loses one of her most eminent scholars, and the last link is broken in the line of internationally famous men joining the present student generation with the Oberlin of a half century ago. Dr. Wright served almost continuously from 1881 to 1907 as a member of the Oberlin faculty. He found time from his duties to render service in the United States Geological Surveys and to publish very many scientific works, the majority of which have been translated into foreign languages. Since 1907 Professor Wright was the editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra. He retired in 1907 as Professor Emeritus.

The meeting was then closed with the W. C. T. U. benediction.

Shower Party Honors June Bride

ELYRIA—A very delightful affair recently held was the shower tended to Miss Carolyn Webber at her home on 1604 Middle avenue, by her friends in the honor of her approaching marriage to Del McSweeney of Cleveland. The color scheme was artistically carried out in white and gold and fresh cut flowers graced the home. The guest of honor was presented with many beautiful and useful gifts which Webster of Oberlin. She discussed in the dining room. A dainty luncheon was later served at which plates were laid for thirty guests and the appointments were carried out in the same colors of gold and white. Music and games were the chief diversions of the evening and piano solos were rendered by Louise Machovina, recently returned from Asheville, North Carolina. Out of town guests from Cleveland, Lorain and Amherst were present and the guests departed at a late hour, showering their best wishes on the bride-elect.

Debs' Prosecutor Speaker at Club

The speaker at the Thursday luncheon of the Kiwanis Club will be Mr. Joseph C. Breitenstein of Cleveland. His subject will be "Federal Laws, their Administration and Enforcement." He was born in Canton, O., served as private secretary to Senator Alton Pomeroy at Washington and since 1915 has been Assistant United States Attorney with headquarters at Cleveland and Toledo. In the latter capacity he has served as legal adviser to all federal officials in 43 counties in Ohio, and has been chief trial lawyer for the government in cases in the United States Courts in this District.

He prepared and assisted in the trial of an arguer for the government in the celebrated trial of Eugene V. Debs for violation of the Espionage Act.

While only a limited number of guests can be accommodated at the luncheon any one interested is invited to come to the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 12:30 and listen to his address.

TIMELY HINTS

ELYRIA—Baby chicks should not be fed for from twenty-four to thirty-six hours after hatching, and will not suffer if not given food until the third day. The yolk of the egg, which is absorbed by the chick when hatching furnishes all the nourishment required during that time. After the third day they should be fed four or five times daily for the first week or ten days, but they should be given only what they will eat up clean each time. Overfeeding will do more harm than underfeeding. Greater care must be used not to overfeed young chicks that are confined than those that have free range, as leg weakness is apt to result in those confined.

The first feed should consist of Johnny cake or hard boiled eggs mixed with stale bread crumbs or pinhead oatmeal, using a sufficient amount of the latter to make dry, crumbly mixture. These feeds or combinations of feeds may be used with good results for the first week; then gradually substitute for one or two feeds daily a mixture of equal parts of finely cracked wheat, cracked corn, and pinhead oatmeal or hulled oats, to which may be added a small quantity of broken rice, millet, rapped, and charcoal, if obtainable. This mixture makes an ideal ration, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. If corn cannot be had cracked kafir corn, rolled or hulled barley may be substituted.

How to Make Johnny Cake.
Corn meal, lbs. 5
Infertile eggs (tested out sittings or from an incubator) 5
Baking soda, tablespoon 1
Mix with milk to make a stiff batter and bake thoroughly.

When the chicks are from 10 to 14 days old a dry-growing mash composed of the following should be given:
2 parts by weight of bran
2 parts middlings.
1 part corn meal.
1-2 part, or 10 per cent sifted meat scrap.

COTTON SLUMP HITS SOUTH HARD BLOW

By H. C. HAMILTON,
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.)

ATLANTA, Ga., April 27.—Facing the grimmest fight since the days of the reconstruction that followed the war between the states, southern farmers today are ready to practically abandon cotton as the backbone of their crops and swing over to commodities which will bring them in more revenue. They hope they will not have to be drastic enough to seriously affect production of this staple, which in the past has brought many thousands of millions annually into this section, but already steps have been taken to cut into this year's planting with sufficient vigor, they believe, to force prices back to something near normal.

Conservative estimates place the number of cotton bales on the farms and in the warehouses now at 10,000,000. There are fields scattered over the south spotted white with cotton which has been left to rot on the stalk. Farmers would rather let it stay there than go to the expense of picking, ginning and shipping.

Many things have contributed to the condition which makes the lot of farmers in Dixie unusually hard. First, there was the exodus of negro labor when the north began offering wages which attracted the field hands. Some of these are now returning to the south, but many others are not. Therefore wages mounted to a prohibitive rate. White men are not constructed to stand the withering heat of southern cotton fields.

Prices Below Pre-War Rates.

Freight rates have shot up until shipment of raw cotton now is a serious business. Still—cotton prices are lower now than before the war.

A canvass of the situation in the "old south," and extending into Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri, shows that state departments have taken official cognizance of the situation and are urging steps to offset what might happen if planters continued the old way and planted big cotton crops.

Soy beans, something comparatively new in crops of this country, will be planted by many farmers. It is a valuable product with oil products contributing to its value. These facts have been developed in investigations by the International News Service.

Georgia's cotton acreage for this year will not exceed one-half that of 1920, provided a survey made by the state is correct. Food and feed products will replace it.

Tennessee, which has one of the world's greatest cotton markets at Memphis—does not raise a great deal of cotton, but Memphis organizations are backing a movement to cut the acreage of that state in half. Nothing definite has been learned yet in Oklahoma City circles regarding this year's crop, but strong pressure is being brought to bear to make the crop smaller, by half.

Lettersheads now being used by this state's agricultural board bear a cartoon, which shows a whirlpool on the edge of the shore, "diversified crops." A farmer struggles in the whirlpool, which is marked "the one crop cotton whirlpool." If we could arrange to raise 6,000,000 in 1921 instead of 12,000,000 bales the credit of the south would be greatly improved," says a note on this letterhead.

Florida Looks Elsewhere
Florida—Various crops are being substituted for cotton. Corn, peanuts, sugar cane, hay, soy beans and similar products will be increased this year to take the place of cotton. Florida, remember, raises a large amount of sea island cotton, the rare long staple product which grows only on the southern islands and seacoast.

Arkansas—The propaganda has not filtered into Arkansas with full force.

BLIND GIRL TAPESTRY WEAVING ARTIST

Miss Agnes Stafford, although blind from the age of four months, has a remarkable color sense and makes the color selections for the exquisite tapestry weaving which is her work at the New York Lighthouse for the Blind. With President Harding as honorary chairman and Miss Winifred Holt, "the Lady of the Lighthouse," as director, the committee for Lighthouses for the blind is carrying on a campaign for the extension of just such work as goes on every day in the weaving, sewing and handicraft rooms of the lighthouse where all the workers are sightless. Miss Stafford is here shown at work on a piece of tapestry.

HAPPY YOUTH! SWIMMIN' AND FISHIN' DAYS

LORAIN—This is great weather, especially for the young Americans despite the fact that school will not be out until June. Nevertheless the Lorain lads are getting all the pleasure possible between study and sleeping, for are not fish a bit and the water is warm enough for swimming during the last few days?

"Come on in, the water's fine!" was the resounding exclamations heard along the beach yesterday afternoon, which joyful information was responded to by diving and splashing of swimmers in all their glory.

"The Old Swimmin' Hole" of which James Whitcomb Riley sang, has nothing on Lake Erie, which, declared the village wit, is never crowded.

Swimming in the lake is to be popular this summer. When was it never popular? Not only will the boys enjoy a cool plunge in the placid water but the rich and poor, the high and others will bask upon the beach and take plunges into the cool, refreshing aqua.

ADVICE ON BROODING AND REARING CHICKENS

A good brooder house and a good equipment are essential for brooding chicks.

Do not let the chicks get chilled or get too warm.

Do not feed till at least 48 hours old; 70 hours is better.

Get the chicks on fresh, clean range as soon as possible.

Milk is the most important chick feed, and may be fed as the only drink to force consumption.

Feed a dry mash from the first week to maturity.

Green food should be supplied at all times.

SHORTHORN BULL CALF SALE IMPROVES COUNTY LIVESTOCK

Purebred shorthorn bull calves were sold to Hardin county farmers at an average of $123 at a recent sale. This sale was made possible by a few of the local progressive shorthorn breeders going into Seneca county and buying a carload of high class calves from well-known breeders. This carload together with their own surplus stock of bull calves supplied the material for the sale.

Every bull was sold to Hardin county farmers and none to breeders.

Improved Gas Appliances Usable Until Worn Out

New and improved devices for burning natural gas with economy and high efficiency can be purchased now without fear that they will have to be discarded when it becomes necessary to substitute manufactured gas for natural gas.

New ranges, cooking stoves, hot plates, water heaters, room heating units and auxiliary appliances are being produced to operate successfully with natural gas under the same conditions of pressure and economical consumption as those especially designed for manufactured gas.

Assurances are given by some manufacturers that their new products now on the market, and in process of completion, with the much higher heat content of natural gas, will in practice, show a remarkably increased efficiency and economies in consumption heretofore believed to be impossible.

U. S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETS TODAY

By HARRY L. WARD
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 27.—With the general theme "In the public interest—more business methods in the government, less government management of business," as the basis of the ninth annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States will begin here today and continue for three days. Matters of the highest importance to the business men of the country will be discussed and it is probable that President Harding will send a message to the conference bearing on vital topics.

General sessions of the conference will be held each morning and night and group meetings to discuss such topics as civic development, domestic distribution, fabricated production, finance, foreign commerce, insurance, natural resources, production and transportation and communication, will take place each afternoon of the three days scheduled for the meeting. Leaders in the world of trade, finance and transportation will participate in the discussions, while various members of the administration, including Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, will address the various meetings. Mr. Hoover will speak at the opening session tomorrow.

Railroad Problems Up

Proposed plans for reducing the cost and increasing the efficiency of railroad transportation in the United States will be discussed at the railroad group meeting to be held tomorrow. The speakers will include a prominent railroad executive, a large shipper, a leading banker and an eminent engineer. In addition, there will be a general discussion of the whole railroad question. By means of this discussion the national chamber hopes to bring about a greater degree of cooperation and understanding between the different groups and thus aid in the development of a plan looking to a solution of the railroad problem.

World Trade Issues

World trade problems will be discussed by the American section. The purpose will be to bring out the American viewpoint on economic problems in the fields of finance, production, distribution, communications and restoration of devastated areas.

Two Insurance Group Meeting

Will be held, among the topics being private initiative versus state monopoly, insurance as a credit factor and government and marine insurance.

Tax and Tariff Debate

The session of Thursday will be featured by discussions on taxation and tariff policy. The purpose is primarily educational and it is aimed to secure a frank and open discussion of the questions involved. The delegates will vote as to whether there should be an increase in the income tax; should there be a sales tax; should there be a resort to loans; should the tariff be framed with due regard to export as well as to the protection of manufacturing in the United States; should the tariff offer trading or bargaining possibilities for international commercial treaties to encourage export trade, and other matters bearing on taxation and tariff policies. The vote taken will in no way commit the Chamber, but will be considered as counsel and advice to the board of directors in any action it may take with respect to admitting the questions involved to a referendum vote.

Future Shipping Boards

An entire group meeting has been set aside for a discussion of maritime subjects. Representative shipping men from the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts will discuss the problems that are now pressing for solution in the shipping world. The future of the Shipping Board will be one of the three main topics to be discussed. International finance is another of the important subjects that will be discussed. With the United States now a creditor nation, and with the Treasury's revenue re-

HEROINE REWARDED

Good people everywhere, here you see Mrs. Norman Gurling and Dorothy Grace Gurling, of White Plains, N. Y. If you read newspapers you know about Mrs. Gurling. She is the heroic mother who, just a few days before Dorothy Grace was born, climbed twenty feet down a well to rescue her fifteen-month-old son, Norman Jr., who had accidentally toppled in. The water in the well was twenty feet deep. Mrs. Gurling had to dig holes in the sides of the well to hold her feet, as she descended and ascended. She brought the boy up on her shoulders unharmed. She, too, was uninjured. Because she's such a wonderfully good and brave mother Dame Nature sent the stork around with Dorothy Grace probably as a reward and you may see for yourselves how happy Mrs. Gurling is now.

Wild Pursuit to Rescue Girl Who Had Fainted

COLUMBUS, April 27.—An auto sped toward Columbus through the main street of a village some miles west of here. Pedestrians noted a young woman, with a handkerchief bound round her head, leaning back on the rear seat and a couple on the front seat.

Like wildfire, spread the report that auto bandits had bound and gagged a girl and were making way with her

Village residents west of here were thrilled as they noted the speeding car was being followed by Sheriff's deputies, town marshals, village constables and other pursuers.

PARIS, April 27.—"If the German indemnity proposals are to be acceptable to France they must be larger than the offer made by the Germans at the London conference," declared Premier Briand in the Chamber of Deputies.

Another great burst of applause greeted the premier when he referred to Premier Lloyd George's statement in the British house of Commons yesterday that England would approve of the occupation of the Ruhr district of Germany on May 1, if the German reparations proposal was unacceptable.

"We have taken necessary measures for seizures that are an indispensable guarantee of Germany's good faith on the matter of reparations," continued M. Briand.

"France and Great Britain were in full accord at the Hythe conference. I am fully confident that the United States only will take the initiative in transmitting the new German proposals."

It was at this point that the premier declared that the German of-

OUTDOOR COMMENCEMENT BUILDING AT BUCYRUS

MARTINS FERRY, April 27.—Outdoors commencement for the local high school is being considered. The high school stage will seat only 50 persons. There are 60 members of the graduating class. It is proposed that the commencement be staged in the afternoon, instead of evening, on the high school lawn.

Next year's class will have a membership of 90, school officials predicted. This, they said, indicates that the commencement problem will continue to be a factor in high school affairs here, unless solved now.

The Good Old Days?

Dad Could Tell Some Stories

Mansfield Paper Tells How Vitally Necessary Utilities Are

Thirty years ago this morning, Dad poked on unwilling feet out of bed. Back it came with a jerk. Then, with an effort, he plunged into the chilly atmosphere.

With numb fingers he searched for a match. It sputtered out. Again he tried and this time he got the lamp lit.

Shivering, he pattered down to the kitchen and fired up the fire in the range. Then, while Mother fried the eggs, Dad struggled through his slaps with lukewarm water. A slice out of his chin was charged to the unsteady flame of the lamp.

Breakfast over, he started out on his frigid hike to work.

And then we talk of the good old days!

Most of the comforts that make life easier to live nowadays are supplied by those big common utilities, the public utilities. The light that shines at a touch, the street car that saves chilblains, the gas that instantly obeys the match, the telephone that eliminates the miles of walking, the telegraph that does away with days of uncertainty—these are our most useful—and our cheapest—conveniences.

So every citizen is interested in the prosperity of the public utilities. For unless these industries are successful the quality of their service suffers—and so do we.

LABOR LEADER ATTACKS GEORGE MOST BITTERLY

By EARL C. REEVES,
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.)
LONDON, April 27.—Lloyd George has forsaken the cause of the people, after having failed in the great opportunity of reconstructing society on lines of justice, which opportunity was presented to him at the end of the war.

Such is the interpretation placed upon the prime minister's recent series of attacks upon labor by Arthur Henderson, M. P., secretary of the Labor Party.

Lloyd George made two speeches last night, and twice took occasion to repeat his sermon against what he termed the threat of revolution, while making announcements in the use of commonsense.

"No political leader has ever paid tribute to his opponent," said the prime minister, "as the Labor Party in his speech to the members of the Coalition cabinet."

"They wanted a new justification for the continuance of the coalition and a new inspiration for the struggle in which they saw that their careers will be at stake. And the only plea their leader could advance was that the Labor Party would come into power in the near future unless all the her parties combined to oppose a phenomenal progress in the continuance."

"By that speech Mr. Lloyd George is aligned himself definitely and irrevocably with the party of privilege and property which he once assailed with a vehemence of language and a recklessness of spirit that labor propagandist, even among the little group of extremists whose influence among the workers is by no means equal to their sense of importance ever excelled."

"He has forsaken the people's cause. He had an opportunity—even to no statesman for many generations—to reconstruct society, to organize and impoverish by the war, on the principles of social justice, and economic freedom which he once ardently advocated. He has betrayed these ideals. And he has turned to the organized labor, and he turns to read the men who had trusted him."

Premier "In the Know."
"The Labor Party will not merely survive his attack, it will be strengthened by it. The hysterical ragerations of Lloyd George's speeches deceived no one, least of all himself."

"He does not believe that labor's aims are subversive; no one knows better than he how much importance attaches to the revolutionary sentiments of a few extremists in an organized movement; no one as a shrewd opinion as to the influence these exercise in the councils of organized labor."

"He appeals to the credulity and midity of the electors, but to the self interest and the fears of those who have made him their leader, to maintain him in office is their only hope of maintaining a system which involves undeserved privileges for the few and undeserved hardships for the many."

"For seven years I was in a very weak and run-down condition and my appetite was completely

"But that is not the case with me since I took Tanlac. I have a ravenous appetite now and my whole system has been wonderfully built up. I hardly notice any rheumatic pains and can do my sewing as well as ever. Tanlac has helped me so much that I feel a great deal better in every way than I have for years. It is a pleasure for me to recommend this wonderful medicine."

What Is It You Want In Your Car? What Qualities Do You Expect?

You want a car of sturdy durability that is reliable in its service, a car of generous power and real flexibility of power, a car that rides comfortably and has plenty of room, a car that has proved its qualities, a car of which the upkeep cost is low and the operating costs most economical, a car that is easy to handle, a car of beauty of design, style and finish that you will be proud of, a car upholstered in genuine hand-buffed leather, a car built by a company of wide resources and experience, and you want this kind of a car at a price within your means.

All These Qualities the Cleveland Six Provides for You

THE Cleveland Six, product of men highly skilled in automobile engineering and production, is built in one of the most modern, efficient factories of the industry. It has won praise everywhere for its dependable service.

Why Choose a Four When You Can Have a Six?

The exclusive Cleveland motor is the most highly refined of the overhead valve type and is alive with a wealth of power and flexibility of power that you cannot find in fours, and in few sixes. The car owner is rare, indeed, who has gone back to a four after owning a six.

It Rides Rough Roads Like a Car Weighing Twice as Much

It takes rough roads comfortably at thirty miles an hour, over which you would hesitate to drive in many cars at more than fifteen miles. This extraordinary roadability is due to the scientific distribution of weight and the long low underslung spring construction.

Service for 20,000 Owners Has Established Cleveland Quality

These owners tell us of the Cleveland's better qualities. They tell us of its wonderful performance on long tours and in daily service. They say they can count on it to do what they want it to do.

18 to 23 Miles on Gasoline 12,000 to 15,000 on Tires

The upkeep cost of the Cleveland is kept down to a minimum by the high-grade material entering into all parts of the car, the accuracy of the machining and the extreme care in assembly. And the cost of operating the Cleveland is very low. Cleveland owners report average season gasoline mileage records of from 18 to 23 miles. The big four-inch cord tires make tire mileage of 12,000 to 15,000 customary, and there are many owners' reports of even higher mileage.

There Is No Strain In Driving a Cleveland

The Cleveland is undoubtedly one of the most easily handled cars ever designed. The gear lever, right by the driver's side, works at a touch.

Your Friends Will Admire Your Cleveland

You will be proud of the appearance of any Cleveland model you select. All four of these are of splendid style, designed on harmonious lines, dignified and luxuriously finished.

Hand-Buffed Leather Does Not Check or Crack

The Cleveland touring car and roadster are upholstered in high-grade, genuine hand-buffed leather, the best upholstery you could ask for. Many cars in the Cleveland general price field are upholstered in machine-buffed leather or imitation leather.

Deeply Cushioned at Comfort Angles

All four models are deeply cushioned, with the cushions at comfort angles. The sedan and coupe are upholstered in fine velour and are as comfortable as overstuffed chairs.

Stability and Assurance Back of Every Cleveland

The Cleveland car is produced by a strong, responsible, financially stable organization of long association in the building of fine cars. You can feel every assurance in selecting its product.

There's No Other Car To Equal It At Such a Low Price

There are light fours and light sixes selling a little below or above its price, and some quite considerably above its price, no one of which offers such real value as the Cleveland.

If it were possible for you to compare them with the Cleveland as to engineering design, as to quality of material entering into the car, as to details of equipment and as to its actual performance, you would know there is no other to match it at such a low price.

GERMAN CLUB HEAD CANCELS RENTAL OF HALL TONIGHT FOR SOCIALIST LABOR MEET

LORAIN — H. Lichtenstein of Cleveland, nor any other Socialist-Labor speaker will address a meeting in the German Club house, for there is going to be no such gathering held in that place, was the substance of a declaration made last evening by Michael Dulder, president of the club.

Mr. Dulder said, "The management has concluded to cancel the engagement for use of the club house tonight, as advertised. There is a question raised as to the legality of this meeting. Parties unknown to us, who made down payments on the hall rent, can have their money refunded by calling at the office of the club. Mr. Dulder further said that the men who called upon him several days ago to rent the hall for the scheduled speaking tonight did not state what kind of a meeting it was to be—simply a speaking, but just as soon as he and other officials of the club house learned positively what the nature of the gathering was to be, steps were taken to cancel the rental and to wash their hands of any connection with the proposed gathering.

ACTION TOWARDS AVERTING COAL CRISIS IS UNDER WAY

By H. K. REYNOLDS
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, April 27.—Action during the present session of congress toward averting national coal crisis by the regulation of railroad rates through a system of seasonal differentials appears likely as the outcome of hearings now in progress before the senate interstate commerce committee on the Frelinghuysen bill.

This measure proposes the reduction of freight rates in the summer months as a means of inducing the buying public to purchase more coal at that time, thereby relieving the coal famine which has been the result of lack of transportation in the winter months rather than by shortage at the mines.

The introduction of the bill in the present congress marked the continuation of work which the interstate commerce committee has directed for nearly two years in the hope of devising a method for relieving the coal situation. Although members of the committee have not yet arrived at a conclusion as to the exact nature of the rate regulation proposals as they will be reported to the senate, it was indicated today that definite action looking to a solution of the problem was to be expected within a few days.

The majority of the members of the committee have expressed themselves as convinced that the principle set forth in the rate regulation bill was sound, but there had been some disagreement and objection from Senator Cummings, chairman of the committee and other members, as to the propriety of the fixing of the differentials by Congress. They have been inclined to contend that the establishment of the seasonal differentials should be delegated to the interstate commerce commission, which body is charged in the bill with carrying out the provisions of the act.

PLAN OCEANOGRAPHIC 4-YEAR EXPEDITION

(By International News Service)
LONDON, April 27.—An expedition—lasting three or four years and costing between $800,000 and $1,200,000—to explore all the great oceans of the world is proposed by the oceanographical committee of the Royal British Association for the Advancement of Science, who hope that work will begin as soon as financial conditions have improved.

An attempt will be made to make the expedition, which will be led by Professor W. A. Herdman, F. R. S., president of the association, as great as the Challenger, which, under Sir George Nares and Sir Wyville Thomson, in 1872-76, added enormously to scientific knowledge.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

ANTI-JAPANESE BILL DANGEROUS SAYS HAWAIIAN

By W. K. BASSETT,
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.)
HONOLULU, April 27.—"You are touching a match to the inflammable material which means the blaze of war between the United States and Japan. I believe it is God's word I am speaking."

Such is the statement made to the legislature of the territory of Hawaii by Lorrin A. Thurston, owner of the Honolulu Advertiser, and direct descendant of one of the first American missionaries to land on the islands. It represents the first public statement referring to possible war between the two countries which has been made in Hawaii by a responsible person and one who is recognized as a leader of the conservative element here.

The statement of Thurston was made in the legislature during the debate on the proposed bill which would compel translations to be printed in all foreign language newspapers, parallel with articles and editorials in the foreign language. Although the bill strikes at Korean, Chinese, Filipino and Portuguese papers as well as those in the Japanese language, it was inspired by the opposition to the Japanese press, represented in the lands by more than a dozen weekly newspapers that are published in the English language.

Anti-Jap Press Bill Up
Although Lorrin Thurston has repeatedly endeavored to bring about a mutual understanding between the Japanese and American residents of the islands, he has not previously in public hinted at dangers of war. At the special session of the legislature in 1919, the newspaper publisher was successful in preventing a drastic anti-foreign language school bill being considered by the legislative body and substituted for the proposed law one which regulated the Japanese school and which was endorsed by leading Japanese business and professional men of the community. The Thurston law, as it is called, places the foreign language schools, heretofore conducted exclusively and independently by the Japanese, under the jurisdiction of the department of public instruction and provides that all teachers shall be examined in English language, history and institutions before a permit will be granted them to teach in the private schools.

Thurston's opposition to the anti-Japanese press bill has resulted in a general division of the community and many American citizens have come to the publisher's support in expressing disfavor with the bill. The Japanese press is publishing bitter condemnation of the proposed law, but the general attitude of the leading Japanese residents is along the line of conservatism.

I. W. W. Leader Flees to Russia to Escape Jail Term

Federal officials in Chicago have received confidential information that William D. Haywood, secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World, and scheduled to begin a 20-year term at the Leavenworth, Kan., Federal penitentiary, has fled from the United States and is now in either Moscow or Riga, Russia, Haywood, it is said, sailed from New York, about April 1 and landed in Russia fifteen days later.

SIGNS OF SPRING

PARIS, April 27.—This year, as in previous years, it was not the first buds on the trees, the chirping of birds or the appearance of the first straw hat on the head of a cab driver that announced the arrival of spring to Parisians. When the first Paris beggar, squatting in the sun along the bank of the Seine, removed the socks he has worn all winter, washed them carefully in the river and then laid them out on the stones to dry, the newspapers announced that spring had come.

STANDARD OIL CUTS PRICES IN INDIANA

CHICAGO, April 27.—A reduction of three cents per gallon in the price of gasoline went into effect today in the territory of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The price was 22¢ per gallon at filling stations and 20¢ at tank wagons.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

It is quite probable that most persons who do not save money, intend to do so some day.

But the time to begin saving is today.

No matter how difficult it may seem to practice thrift today, the weeks and months and years will not make the task easier. The hardest dollar of all to save is the first one.

Save as you go. This is a motto that should be adopted by all of us. The man who saves a small amount of money today is better equipped to save something tomorrow or next week. He is stronger in character, and has an inspiration in the tangible evidence of his economy.

Also the man who goes along from day to day without saving is simply making the task harder for himself. He is paying a usurious interest for his procrastination which may some day completely crush and overwhelm him, for he is undermining his character, vitiating his will and gambling his time against fate.

One of the sayings of Poor Richard was: "A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose all his life to the grindstone, and die not worth a groat at last."

If you are not saving money today, do not make the mistake of believing that time will make the beginning easier.

Even though your income may increase, and your general circumstances in life become prosperous, you will find it just as hard to save money later as it is now. Added to your habits of thrift there should be the seasoning benefits of time. For each day that you practice thrift adds strength to your character. It bestows mental, moral and physical benefits in addition to those which are purely financial or material.

Do not emulate the example of poor old Micawber who was always waiting for something to turn up and wasted his years in poverty and want.

Plan and provide for the future. Do not be deceived by the mirage of tomorrow.

JAPANESE HARD PRESS AMERICAN SHIPPING

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Thousands of Chinese seamen will continue to serve American ship crews under a "liberal" interpretation of the language test clause of the seamen's act, by decision announced by Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Secretary Hoover said he had declined to accede to requests filed by the international seamen's union for such a strict interpretation of the act, as would have the effect of debarring most of the Chinese from America, because of inability to speak English fluently. Secretary Hoover said the shipping on the Pacific is "desperate" because of Japanese competition and that the situation would be aggravated by a departure from present methods followed by navigation and customs officers.

LORAIN HAS MANY ENTHUSIASTIC GOLF PLAYERS THIS SEASON

LORAIN — Golf, formerly considered a pastime for the aged and feeble, is claiming an increasing number of young followers annually. Several years ago little was heard of known of this ancient sport in this locality. Golfers could have been numbered on one hand and few indeed had the slightest conception of its rules and regulations. Today Lorain's golf addicts may be numbered in the hundreds, and nearly every gathering has a champion to acclaim its merits. Business men have found it an ideal conditioner and many would favor the addition of several Wednesday afternoons to the week. Afternoon bridge parties are relegated to the background as a tour-some is arranged among the feminine "four hundred." The summer schedule of tournaments will provide interesting competition in the various classes and plans for inter-city matches are under way.

Babe Ruth Fined $25 For Speeding

NEW YORK, April 27.—George Herman (Babe) Ruth, honor running of the New York Yankees, was fined $25 for speeding today in the traffic court by Magistrate Frederick House. The traffic court, corridors and the sidewalk outside was jammed with men and boys eager to see the Colossus of swat. The complaint charged Ruth with speeding at 27 miles an hour on Broadway last Wednesday. "Have you anything to say?" Magistrate House asked. The "Babe" stood on one foot, then on the other fumbled with his yellow cap, chewing gum and grinning. "No sir, not a thing," he finally answered. "I'm going to let you off as light as I can," said the magistrate. "Will you pay $25 please?" "Where do you pay?" asked Ruth, drawing a big wad of bills from his pocket. He paid the fine and then had to fight his way through the crowd outside to his automobile.

CLEVELAND, April 27.—Philip F. Weiss was arrested at his home, 1854 Marloes avenue, East Cleveland by Detectives Suetana and Murphy. According to the Norwalk officials, Weiss attempted to bribe P. H. Mason not to testify against the defendants in a recent trial of seven Cleveland young men on a charge of taking about $4,000 worth of diamonds and some cash from Mason at the latter's general store at Townsend, O., last December. Two of the defendants were found guilty, four pleaded guilty and one was acquitted.

GOVERNMENT TO ISSUE GUIDE TO CONSUMERS OF COMMODITY COSTS

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Fair price lists may be published by the government as a consumers' guide on the cost of commodities. The commerce department is giving serious consideration to the plan, in connection with the work of reorganizing the federal bureau on statistics, Secretary Hoover said Tuesday. Retail prices on manufactured articles are unusually high in many lines, said Secretary Hoover. "Wholesale prices show deep cuts, but the consumer is a long way from getting the benefit of corresponding reductions." Secretary Hoover cited woolen goods as a sample from lengthy lists on which consumers still are being forced to pay large profits. "Reductions made by dealers," said Hoover, "are upon a narrow margin, and the prices in many directions still enable dealers to make even more than it was possible during the war inflation." The government seeks in no way to interfere with the normal processes of business Hoover said. What it does contemplate, however, is the matter of an accurate determination of manufacturing costs, for the full benefit of the public and with such wide publication that small buyers can purchase with an intelligent idea of what reasonable prices should be.

BRITISH NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF LABOR WOMEN MEETS TODAY

2-30—BRITISH NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF LABOR WOMEN MEETS TODAY. LONDON, April 27.—When the first National Conference of Labor Women meets at Manchester today a number of matters of national and international importance will be discussed. There will be a general condemnation of the government's actions and attitude in Ireland. Resolutions will be presented ranging all the way from a demand for the withdrawal of troops to a suggestion for an immediate election to determine the exact form of government to be established in the country. The standing joint committee of Industrial Women's Organizations will propose that, in addition to withdrawing all armed forces the British government shall place the responsibility for maintaining order in each locality in Ireland on the local authorities and that an election shall be held at once of an open constituent assembly, empowered to work out, without limitations or fetters, whatever constitution for Ireland the Irish people desire. Women May Aid Ireland. The resolution also requests that all the women of this country should join with them in helping to put this policy into force and thus end the present intolerable conditions for the people of Ireland. The Fabian Society goes further, saying: "This conference wishes to express its deep sense of shame at the state of disorder in Ireland. While denouncing all acts of bloodshed and violence, it lays the blame for the present reign of terror on the dishonest and brutal methods of government. It calls upon the latter to withdraw the armed forces of the Crown and to establish Home Rule subject to a guarantee being given by a responsible Irish Parliament for the protection of religious and other minorities." Condemn Irish Policy. The Women's Section of the Dulwich Labor Party will present a resolution asking the conference to condemn the policy of the government in Ireland and demand the immediate withdrawal of all troops. A revision of the Peace Treaty is to be suggested by the standing joint committee. It demanded the repeal of the Reparations Act and the withdrawal of "sanctions," together with the reopening of negotiations with Germany so that the money paid by that country will be reasonable in amount and be made in such a manner that it will not be injurious to the industrial life and trade of the countries concerned. That co-operative and non-profit-making organizations should handle whatever credits might be given to countries which have fallen into ruin is a further suggestion of the committee, and the resolution ends with the statement: "Favor New League. The conference expresses its regret that the League of Nations has failed so far to influence the world towards peace and believes that this failure is due to the fact that it has acted as a league of powerful governments instead of a league of peoples. It believes that the road to peace is open, but that it can only be reached if the old system of the balance of power and of great armaments is set aside and the people of the world come together with mutual good-will ready to co-operate with one another for the common advantage of all." The Women Workers' Section of the National Union of General Workers, the Fabian Society, the Women's Section of the Ilford Labor Party and other women's branches of the various labor bodies, all joined in presenting resolutions condemning the Allies' drastic attitude toward Germany and requesting that trade be re-opened at once, not only with that country, but also with Russia and Austria. The official adoption of Esperanto as an international language is to be urged by one body of women, together with an exchange of male and female apprentices in all countries.

LA FOLLETTE CONDEMNS BRITISH RULE IN ERIN. WASHINGTON, April 27.—"The British policy in Ireland is without warrant in law or morals and deserves the condemnation of the world," Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, declared during his speech on the Irish question in the Senate. "It is founded upon falsehood and greed and unless arrested it can come to no issue except the extermination of the Irish people," he continued. diplomatic agreements with foreign powers should be openly arrived at so that the people may know of all such transactions and agreements. "The Standard of Living," "High Prices and Profiteering," "Education" and "Workmen's Compensation" are a few of the other subjects which will be touched on during the conference. The conference will end with an address by the Right Honorable Arthur Henderson on "The Labor Party and Ireland."

LORAIN COUNTY WOOL GROWERS TO POOL WOOL

ELYRIA — Fifty wool growers of Lorain county have purchased 160 shares in the state wool warehouse at Columbus, which includes about half of the wool growers of the county. The county wool growers have secured a rate of 2 3/4 cents a pound for insurance, storage, grading and selling of the wool. The price now carries from 23 to 42 cents a pound, which is held unusually low. Through the efforts of the county farm bureau a special twine for tying of wool has been secured. The special twine enables the better sorting of the wool, according to County Agent Howard Rogers. The first sheep shearing is in progress in Lorain county and estimates that over 200,000 pounds of wool will be obtained. Most of the wool growers will pool their wool and within a short time cars will be stationed at various points in the county for the loading of the wool for shipment to the warehouse at Columbus. SHORT STORIES

OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

Miss Boyd--Teacher

By Joella Johnson

BERTHA BOYD was in despair. Now that she was a young woman of gloomy disposition or pessimistic reflections, but her present difficulties were of a peculiar quality. She was alone, among strangers, and almost penniless. A distant relative had died and left her a tiny house in the remote village of Mansfield, and she had come to take possession of it, full of hope and courage.

It was now late in September, and from her window Bertha could see the trees already tinted with the shades that presaged decay. She thought with a shudder of the bleak season to come. "What shall I do? I must have some occupation, make some money. I don't know a soul and the worst of it is nobody seems to want to know me. Well, I'll hold out for a year, and if I can't succeed here, I'll go back to the city. Meanwhile—" She paced across the long, narrow room. It was furnished with quaint, old-fashioned furniture and brightened with pictures and draperies which Bertha had brought with her. At one end hung an old faded map with a stanch oak desk beneath. The new occupant of the cottage stood before these ancient belongings with a wistful smile on her lips. "I wonder if I could," she asked herself. "I know I can teach—just the younger children. Of course it would be easy to get a small class together. There's not a private school in Mansfield."

Spurred by her new interest, Bertha procured some neat cards, announcing the opening of Miss Boyd's Private School in Mansfield. A black and white sign was placed on the front door of the cottage; and an attractive advertisement appeared in the weekly paper.

September merged into October and the school season was in full swing; but no applicants had appeared at the Boyd Private School. Behind her buff net curtains, Bertha sat gloomily watching the daily procession of children, none of whom turned his steps toward her door.

"I may as well take down my sign," sighed the would-be-teacher. "Mansfield folks will have none of me."

As she so decided, a smart motor car stopped before her gate. A mature woman swept authoritatively into her neat rehabilitated sitting-room.

"I am Mrs. Parsons, housekeeper for Brentwoods," she announced. "Mr.

Brent wished me to call and make arrangements for you to teach his two children while he is abroad. He went away suddenly."

"Mr. Brent!" gasped Bertha, properly impressed by mention of the greatest person in Mansfield; and one who had already won her unqualified admiration.

"Yes, Dr. Eyre recommended you to him, Miss Boyd, I am to pay you for a term in advance. And the children will be here Monday."

Miss Boyd's Private School opened formally on the following Monday morning. At the end of the first week, there were still but two pupils in attendance and Bertha began to have serious misgivings.

"If Mr. Brent knew the truth of affairs, he would remove his children at once," she told herself one day. "But he is in England and I have accepted his money. I can only do my best until he returns."

Two weeks rolled by. Bertha had grown very fond of her little scholars, who seemed to return her affection.

They talked of their mother, who had been dead nearly three years. Their memories of her were indistinct; but Bertha had heard of the handsome mistress of Brentwoods, who had given more time to social affairs than to her home and family. And she realized that these little ones, with all the splendor that surrounded them, had lacked the tender care of a true mother.

One morning in December the gray car from Brentwoods halted at Miss Boyd's house for the second time that day. It had come from the railroad station, and as the man who alighted opened the schoolroom door a most unusual picture greeted his sight. An animated young woman was seated on a rug before the cheerful fire. Little Parry Brent was stretched beside her and Miss Marjorie hung over her shoulder. The children were listening delightedly to a story.

"And sly Mister Fox was never invited to a party in Chickenville again!" declared the story-teller dramatically. Then Miss Boyd, teacher, sprang to her feet in overwhelming confusion.

"Mr. Brent!"

Morgan Brent turned his stern gaze on Miss Boyd's crimsoning face. "I fancied I had made a mistake," he said, with an air of dignified bewilderment. "I stopped on my way home from the station because I was anxious to see the children. Where are the other scholars, Miss Boyd?"

Poor Bertha faced him bravely, but her limbs were trembling. Her voice was not quite steady as she answered him.

"Mr. Brent, I expected to be able to establish a school in Mansfield; but you have been my only patron. If you had not gone so far away—at least I have taught your children and—and cared for them. Doctor Eyre will tell you."

"Doctor Eyre sang your praises long ago," the speaker's glance dwelt earnestly on the girl's sweet, fine features. "I have no fault to find, Miss Boyd." The tones were kindly and rippled with something like laughter; but Morgan Brent appeared quite serious.

"The children will come as usual tomorrow."

"No. I have no school. We can not continue," Bertha spoke desperately. "I have made up my mind to leave Mansfield. I was only waiting for you to return."

Bertha watched the departure of the Brent motor car; then she went outside and took down her black and white sign. "That's the end of Miss Boyd's Private School!" she declared. But the dark, virile face of Morgan Brent floated before her in tantalizing vision. What had been behind that slow, friendly smile? Bertha recalled the lingering gaze of her departing visitor; the way he had beamed on her as she returned the children's caresses; the warmth of his handclasp at the door. Then she hung aside her dreaming mood. "Nonsense! I am going away."

Again the gray car from Brentwoods and a servant at Miss Boyd's door with a letter. Master Parry and Miss Marjorie had refused to give up their beloved teacher, their father wrote. From his own inspection of her methods Mr. Brent had come to the opinion that no other teacher could fill the place of Miss Boyd; at least for the present. And he earnestly requested her compliance in the matter of caring for his motherless children.

Bertha read the message over and over again. Her eyes sparkled and the color ran high in her cheeks. Somebody wanted her to stay in Mansfield! Seated at her old oak desk with a faded map stretched before her, Miss Boyd, teacher, wrote to the master of Brentwoods, agreeing to receive Master Parry and Miss Marjorie for another term. Then, with a gay song on her lips and her heart beating happily, she went outside and tacked the sign upon her front door again.

A Girl Who Surprised

By Elsie Endicott

THE discussion had ended in the usual way. Tommy had gone out supremely angry, leaving the jar of a slammed door behind him and the echoes of his young voice brittle with passionate protest.

Mrs. Colegrove sank into a corner of the davenport and covered her face with her hand. She felt spent, worsted, yet resolute as ever. She would not give up the fight until she had broken every weapon in her armory.

Mingled with the bitterness of this precipitate defeat was the realization that she had never really known her own son before. It seemed incredible, when he had lain on her lap in long dresses and knelt at her side to say his first prayer, and when with her own hands, she had cut out the long curls and transformed him into a real boy. Widowed as she was, he had meant all the world to her, and she thought she had looked into every crevice of his brain and soul until now. No, not just now. It had, in fact, been going on for some time, ever since that unfortunate visit to the Hubbards, when he had met the girl.

He had been confidential at first, had talked about her, and frankly showed her picture. At the sight of the picture Mrs. Colegrove had felt her heart sink.

"Oh, my dear boy, you want nothing to do with this girl. She's out of your line entirely."

"What's the matter with her?" Tommy had demanded, bristling.

"She's—she's fancy and vulgar. Oh, I don't like her looks at all."

"I like them," said Tommy, "and I like her."

After that confidence flagged. But Mrs. Colegrove knew that he kept on writing to her. She became much alarmed. When Tommy asserted that he was going to see the girl his mother nearly perished with anxiety. And so had come about the last and greatest discussion of all. She had fought a good fight and failed.

As she sat there upon the davenport she thought desperately, futilely of many things. If Tommy ever went to see Evadne Farrar he would come back engaged, and after that it would be too late. Evadne Farrar! She hated the name. It sounded cheap, spectacular, stagy. The girl, as she had imagined from her picture and things Tommy had said, fitted the name. She was a cheap actress who could never be anything more. She was looking for a husband with money and Tommy would constitute a great capture for her. "But she has reckoned without me," Mrs. Colegrove said. "Oh, what shall I do?"

She got up and paced the room. She could not let Tommy go to the girl. But he was determined to see her. She could not keep him at home unless she brought the girl hither. Why, that was it! She had heard that propinquity was often a sure cure for love. She would write the girl to visit her. Before Tommy's eyes she would place her in this exquisite setting of luxury and taste and she would reveal herself to him and disgust him. Tommy was no fool. Hastily she sat down at her desk and drew paper toward her. "My dear Miss Farrar," she began to write.

An answer came immediately. Mrs. Colegrove's hand trembled as she tore open the coarse envelope. The girl had accepted. Thank God! she breathed.

She told Tommy when he came home to dinner.

He looked surprised, then joyous. "She's coming, is she? Glad to hear it. Mother, dear, before Vaddy's been in this house two days you're going to change your opinion of her. She's a wonder. When you consider that she's never had any chance at all, that her parents were actors and that she was carried on the stage as a baby and that she's kept at it because she had to do something and knew nothing else—I say, when you consider all this she's to be admired for what she is. In spite of all she's been through, she's the cleanest, whitest souled girl I ever knew. And she wouldn't tell a lie to save her life."

"Oh, Tommy," said his mother wearily, "won't you let me judge for myself. If you are really determined to have her I should like to form my own opinion of my future daughter-in-law." Secretly she promised herself, "I'll show him. I trust to being able to."

Evadne came. Tommy went to the station to meet her driving the car himself. He brought her into the room where his mother was waiting. Mrs. Colegrove, beautiful, white crowned imperial in her black had a curious feeling of disappointment in what she had planned as she looked into Evadne Farrar's face. It was on a level with her own, and lovely as the picture had not shown it to be, for it was all color—violet eyes, bloomy cheeks, fresh lips and brown hair that glistened with gold. The plain black suit and hat projected all this colorful beauty upon one's consciousness. Mrs. Colegrove was astonished.

"Not a trace of make-up," she admitted to herself when Evadne had been taken to her room. "Just pure health. Not actressy at all. I wonder why she gave Tommy that absurd photograph."

Evadne came down to dinner in a black gown, new and simple. She was quiet and shy. Mrs. Colegrove could not draw her out in the least. "She's resolved to say nothing," she thought, that night she lay long awake thinking. When finally she went to sleep she had a feeling that so far she had found nothing wrong with the girl.

It was midway of the next afternoon that Mrs. Colegrove, coming downstairs too quickly, turned an ankle and fell headlong. Evadne was waiting in the hall for her. Tommy was already in the car, for they were about to start on a ride. So it was Evadne who reached her first. Before Mrs. Colegrove fainted she had a sight of the girl's face, and she felt somehow that Evadne would prove herself equal to the occasion.

The fall proved less serious than the turned ankle. Mrs. Colegrove was put to bed and the doctor came.

"You're going to need a few days' nursing, dear lady," he said. "Shall I not send for Miss McCann?"

"Oh, please!" Evadne's voice was softly eager. "I'd love to take care of her myself. I know how, really." She paused, flushing. "Just try me a day, and if I don't suit you can then send for the regular nurse."

But Evadne did suit. The fourth day Mrs. Colegrove said to her: "Where did you ever learn to be what you are, child?"

Evadne smiled. "Why, I've had lots of experience. And then—You know almost anything attracted me more than acting. I never liked acting. But one must live. And after mother died I had nobody except Mrs. Hubbard. She's been very kind to me. And she's taught me a lot. I can cook a little and sew and nurse. I like to do such things."

A conscientious objector who had been a w. o. l. from Leavenworth penitentiary for about a year objected to being taken back when rearrested in Chicago recently on the ground that a c. o. hasn't a chance in the world in Leavenworth; "he gets beat up for every move he makes." No one doubts the absolute conscientiousness of this latest objection.

The Wonderful Times

By Parke Whitney

EARLY Saturday evening Dorothy Carlyle fairly danced up the little gravel path to her home.

"Lo, sis, what's up? Tryin' to imitate one of them movie queens?" laughed a freckle-faced urchin recklessly riding the rail on the front porch.

"So Jimmy doesn't like candy," giggled Dorothy.

"Aw, you know I was jest foolin'!" parleyed the distressed James.

"Oh, I see, well, please help yourself, but maybe you'd better take only four pieces now, before supper," hinted Dorothy.

"Oooo, Dawwafy, I'se so glad you come home," lisped three-year-old Betty as she ran to greet her biggest sister.

In a joyous mood the trio entered the house. A wan little woman was sitting by a window, waiting for them. She sighed contentedly and smiled lovingly up in her eldest daughter's face as she bent to kiss her.

"How is my motherless this evening?" Dorothy asked cheerfully.

"I'm feeling fine," she answered, but a worried look crept into her gentle face. "I'm afraid Anna is kind of done out. Perhaps you had better—" Dorothy was already on the way to her next oldest sister.

She found her sitting disconsolate in the kitchen chair beside the table. Anna was weakly wiping a very moist pair of eyes which persisted in gazing sorrowfully on a very burnt cake Dorothy twined a loving arm about the shaking shoulders.

"I know just how it was," she soothed. "You thought you would make something extra nice for me. Then just the minute it ought to have been taken out of the oven Jimmy cut himself or Betty fell downstairs or mamma had a coughing spell."

"I'm going to scrape the cake and dish up supper. And, Anna, I've got something great to tell you tonight and with a sisterly hug Dorothy sent her upstairs to bathe her face and to put on a cool dress. Then enveloped in a spacious apron she made the burnt cake fly so that soon there appeared beneath the sooty coat of black a tempting expanse of brown, spongy gingerbread.

After supper the dishes were washed and Betty was put to bed. Then it was that Dorothy and Anna went for a walk. As soon as they were out of hearing from the house Dorothy began to talk. "Mr. Clark told me tonight that a week from Monday I could have a whole week for a vacation."

"Dorothy, is it true, really?" ejaculated Anna.

"Um hm, but this is what I'm going to do," continued Dorothy. "You know mother ought to go to a higher altitude the doctor said so, and her cousin lives up in Vermont. She wrote a one while ago that she would like mamma to come and visit her, but of course mamma couldn't afford it."

I had it all thought out long ago so

I wrote and told cousin Matilda that, maybe, mamma would be able to go this Summer. I got a letter from her, and she said she would be glad to see her, it was so lonesome up there. Well, I've saved up enough money for mamma's fare there and back, and a little extra so she can go there when I have my vacation."

"But, what are you going to do?" broke in Anna.

"I'm going to have the time of my life staying home picnicking with you and Betty and Jim, and you're not going to do one bit of work."

"Don't you think I won't have fun," she continued as Anna was about to interrupt again. "I've got it all planned and it's going to be one grand vacation." She little dreamed how grand.

So it was that mother was sent to cousin Matilda. She had feebly remonstrated at first, but when she learned that grandma Taylor was coming to stay while she was gone she gave up to a feeling of great expectation for her trip.

The first two days of Dorothy's vacation passed like lightning, for all of them were having one continuous frolic. They were having all their meals of food that didn't have to be cooked out of doors. They were now having supper, and were talking gaily about the next day's trip, when grandma Taylor looked up with a question.

"I know a young man who is here visiting his sister, and he is having a wretched time with all her fashionable notions. Would you mind if he came, too?"

Dorothy had misgivings as to the restraint that might be felt, but as grandma Taylor wished it, she gladly consented to help anybody have a good time.

The next day they were all ready to start when the young man came in a roaring, big touring car. As soon as Dorothy was introduced to him she knew he was the nicest man she had ever seen. She continued to think so when he had them all jump in his auto and whirled them away off through the country to the shore of a beautiful lake, where they had lunch.

Here grandma Taylor smoothed out the awkwardness of new acquaintance until Dorothy and the nicest man she had ever seen were too deeply interested in each other's conversation to hardly care to interrupt it by the cruel necessity of eating.

There was another long ride home, and another ride the next day and the next day. Every day Dorothy thought he was nicer than before.

Well, I suppose you've guessed it by this time, but I will just have to say that now there is a wonderful bungalow farmhouse, with wonderful grounds around it, that Dorothy is the wonderful wife of the wonderful man who owns it, and always there is a welcome there for a lady called grandma Taylor. A little further down the road, in another wonderful cottage, mother and Anna and Betty and Jim are still having a wonderful time.

Fit for Job.

"Women should be given a chance of filling the high appointments," argued one.

"'Twouldn't do!" said a youthful and newly married firebrand. "Just think of a woman as a Secretary of the Treasury. What do they know about finance, anyway?"

His effective pause was spoiled by an older man, who said, solemnly: "You just go home to the mussy next Friday night $5 short in your pay, and you'll soon find out."

laughed, as she accepted the chair he drew up for her.

When Winter came again Barbara had a home of her own; and then Mr. Adams proved that he could take care of a furnace fire after all.

Squaring Himself.

The constable of a little country village was a man of exceeding good nature. One day, however, he found it necessary to lock up three tramps who had strayed into his jurisdiction.

Shortly after the arrest he was met by the Mayor of the village, who observing the constable hurrying down the main street, asked:

"Where are you going, constable?"

"Oh," explained P. C. 49, "the three tramps I've just locked up want to play a game of whist, and I'm out hunting for a fourth."

"Yes," said the prince who married Cinderella, "my wife has the smallest foot in the kingdom."

"How nice!" sighed an admiring courtier.

"But she can't put it down as hard as anybody."

Mr. Adams Entertains

By Phil Moore

AS Barbara inserted the key in the lock, her heart sank with the assurance of what awaited her. All the way up the three flights of stairs to her room her skirts fell lower and lower, until they finally reached the zero point, and when she opened the door it seemed as though she could not enter. Her fears were realized. The room was cold for the sixth time that week. She lighted the gas and then went over to the thermometer, which hung on the wall by the window. It registered exactly 48 degrees. This was too much for Barbara, and she dropped into a chair, on the verge of tears.

"I'm so discouraged," she moaned, "for every night when I come home it's cold enough to freeze anyone Mrs. Wilson doesn't know how to take care of a furnace, anyway." Suddenly she started up. "I'm going to tell her just what I think of it," she told herself indignantly, and she ran down the stairs and knocked on the sitting room door. It was opened by a young man, who Barbara decided must be Mrs. Wilson's son. She had expected to see the landlady, and she was somewhat disconcerted. Somehow she did not know how to frame a complaint to this young man.

"I—I came down," she faltered, "to see if—I have any mail." The young man crossed to the opposite side of the room and began looking over some letters on a stand. Barbara was quite sure she detected a glint of amusement in his eyes. "What name?" he asked.

"Oh, how stupid of me!" she exclaimed. "Barbara Littlefield."

"No, there are no letters for you," he said at last.

"Thank you for looking," she said as she turned to go upstairs. Although Barbara's room was colder than it had been before that Winter, she did not mind it so much as usual, for her thoughts were elsewhere. She picked up a book and tried to concentrate her mind upon it, but in spite of herself a boyish face with merry blue eyes would come between her and the pages. "How foolish I am to think of him, she told herself. I can't be very nice, for if he were here he would be looking after the furnace, and we wouldn't be freezing most of the time."

In the days that followed several things occurred which puzzled Barbara not a little. Her first surprise had come in the morning after she had met the young man. She always had her breakfast in a little cafe on the corner, and this particular morning after she had given her order, she chanced to look up from her paper and saw him gazing at her intently from the opposite side of the table. With a blush she returned his cheery good morning, and then re-read her reading. "Why didn't he get his breakfast at home?" she asked herself. He needn't think she would notice him for there had been no introduction, and then—why didn't he take care of the furnace instead of letting his poor mother do it? But when he began to talk to her in a pleasing voice she found herself smilingly answering his questions.

That evening as Barbara came into the hall the young man was just going out, and she heard him address the landlady as "Mrs. Wilson." Then was Barbara puzzled again. At last she came to the conclusion in her own room that Mrs. Wilson must be his stepmother. "And that's why he never looks out for the furnace," he thought, "because he isn't his own mother. He isn't a bit nice."

The next night it was bitter cold and Barbara found that the thermometer had dropped to 46 degrees. With war raging in her heart she descended at once into the sitting room. Mrs. Wilson was not there, but the young man was sitting by the open fire reading. "Where is your mother?" she demanded, irritated by the sight of his apparent comfort.

"My w-what?" he stammered, very much surprised.

"Your mother—Mrs. Wilson," she returned.

The young man burst out laughing. "But Mrs. Wilson isn't my mother. What made you think she was?"

It was Barbara's turn to be disconcerted. "I'm sure I don't know," she confessed. "I thought you were her son the first time I saw you, and I've thought so ever since. Mrs. Wilson has a son, for she told me so," she added, with a laugh.

"Certainly she has a son," he returned, "but he's never around here evenings. I believe he's a night watchman in some cigar factory downtown."

There was still a puzzled look in her brown eyes which were raised to his; but he seemed to interpret the look, for he said, "You're wondering if I'm not her son why I am taking so much comfort while the rest of the lodgers are freezing. Well, I'll tell you. I came down here tonight and the evening you first saw me for the same purpose you did, to find fault about the cold, and as Mrs. Wilson was obliged to go out each time she left me in charge. Sit up by the fire and enjoy it with me."

"But I don't know your name," she protested. "I've always called you Mrs. Wilson's son in my mind, but as you're not, I don't know as I ought—"

"Of course you ought to sit here and enjoy the fire," he interposed. "I'll introduce myself. My name is Richard Adams. Now, won't you stay a little while?" he pleaded. "Just think how much better an open fire is than a register."

"Especially when there's nothing coming up from the register," she

HOUSE URGES IMMIGRATION BILL

With a direct appeal by Secretary of State Hughes for its passage, an immigration bill is now under consideration in congress. The measure is virtually the same as that passed near the end of the last session and vetoed by Mr. Wilson. It provides that admission of aliens for the next 14 months shall be limited to three per cent annually of each nationality now in this country, based upon the census figures of 1910.

Under this limitation, our immigration would be limited to an annual maximum of 404,632. Of these approximately half would come from northwestern Europe, something over one-third from the other European countries and the remainder from countries on this continent. By the application of the percentage principle, with 1910 as the basis, it is possible to admit a class of immigrants more desirable than those who have been coming in largest numbers in the last few years. At the same time, no valid claim of discrimination can be made. It is reasonable to assume that those nationalities already here in large numbers have done more than the others to help build up the country, and that, as they already form a distinct element in our population, more of them will prove more assimilable than a newer element. From the countries of northwestern Europe have come those sturdy, ambitious Caucasians who originally settled America and who have those qualities which America most desires in her new citizens.

America has reached the point at which she must give more attention to the quality of her immigration. Mere quantity is no longer desirable. We will continue to need immigrants of the right sort, and it is probable that the three per cent limit will be found too low. It is only for 14 months, however, and as we have at present a considerable surplus of labor, there is no great danger that we shall experience anything in the nature of a labor famine before the provisions of this temporary law expire. The temporary measure will furnish valuable experience on which to base a permanent immigration policy.

The outstanding point in the recommendation of Secretary Hughes is that rigid restriction is needed to keep out certain undesirable elements. That, of course, is easily understood. If we should admit immigrants indiscriminately now, a large proportion of them would be unable to find jobs, especially those of the type that does not fit in easily with American activities and customs. Already predisposed to theories bordering on anarchy, ignorant and in some cases vicious, they would give the country a lot more of unnecessary trouble during the period of readjustment. The best way is to put up the bars.

INEXCUSABLE CONDUCT

Colonel George Harvey is the accredited ambassador from America to Great Britain. He has been regularly appointed by the president after due consideration had been given to the remarks made by friends and enemies. His name had gone before the senate in regular manner, was voted on in the usual way and the appointment confirmed officially. Today he is American ambassador to Britain and entitled to the usual courtesy due his high office. It was therefore highly unbecoming in Senator Harrison to rise in his place in the senate and pour out his vial of vitriol upon the head of Mr. Harvey.

The speech, which was reported as carefully prepared, was undignified in the extreme, judged by its language alone, aside from the fact that it was venomous and out of keeping with the traditions of the senate and the office held by Mr. Harrison.

We regret the incident and are unwilling to believe it is characteristic of the most dignified body of officials in American life. Opposition to presidential appointments may be expected at any time but after confirmation there is no call for scenes of this kind. Senator Norris voted against the confirmation because he did not believe that the nominee was fitted for a high diplomatic position. This was his right and privilege and no one can find fault with him for his action, but to stage a political mud-throwing like this one of Senator Harrison's is quite another matter and raises the question in the minds of sensible people about the fitness of some senators to represent a great nation like ours.

NO HEARSE FOR VETERANS

An ex-soldier died the other day at Camp Logan Hospital. Once more a hearse had to be provided by Commander R. R. Lewis of the Houston, Texas, post of the American Legion.

The post held a hot meeting afterward. It seems that Uncle Sam buries as cheaply as possible, the disabled soldiers who die at Camp Logan Hospital.

If there is a hearse, someone else has to provide it. If no one else happens to be interested, the casket

An Editorial
On Advertising

The factories are re-opening.
Men are going back to their jobs again.

Building and buying soon will resume their normal activity.

Contentment will supplant unrest throughout the land.

—All to a large degree because throughout this period of slackness and stagnation one force has remained hopefully on the job.

Do you know what that force is?

It is Advertising!

We will refrain from emphasizing, as we justly might, Advertising's direct services to the public in lowering the price of goods, maintaining quality among products, and promoting correct, convenient, valuable buyer-knowledge.

We will overlook for the moment Advertising's powerful contribution as a sales factor to the individual success of the Business that employs it.

These things are generally known and realized. They need no particular urging to arouse recognition in the public mind.

The great and outstanding fact for laymen and advertising men to grasp now is that Advertising, by its own demonstration, is a valuable and vital factor in the promotion of the whole national good.

No man is outside its sphere of influence. It embraces all and effects all.

The layman accustomed to look on Advertising as an instrumentality solely for the benefit of the fortunate few, now suddenly sees it as a power intimately and inseparably linked with himself and his own interests.

This young and vigorous force has helped lift Business back into the saddle, the worker back into his job.

Advertising has kept alive hope. It has shattered pessimism. It has encouraged industry, fostered the gradual recovery of the buying impulse, and at last created a firm market.

Now it will go forward to assist in the development of Good Business and in the restoration of satisfactory political and economic conditions throughout the country.

Every man, high or low, who looks out of a period of depression into prosperous and progressive future, should have a surface knowledge at least of the force that has helped greatly to work the change, and thank—Advertising!

You have realized how the editorial columns of newspapers have helped form public opinion. Think then of their advertising columns as great forces working for business prosperity.

SPANGLER IS DEPOSED AS PA. HOUSE SPEAKER

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 26.—Robert M. Spangler, of York, was deposed as speaker of the house of representatives today and replaced by Samuel A. W. Taylor, who was elected to the vacancy and took the oath of office at 12:15 minutes after the hour. He had been recalled to order from his absence taken early today. Whittier was elected by a vote of 211 to 1 for Spangler.

is placed in a broken-down ambulance for its trip to the war victim's last resting place in Magnolia Cemetery, said to have been formerly a potter's field. Lots cost $11 each. Nearby is a brick kiln.

The amazing part of the story is that it's the usual occurrence, not an exception. It is merely the climax to the disgraceful neglect of the disabled soldier before he dies, on the part of a national government bound with red tape.

There is much talk about cutting the red tape and giving the disabled soldier a square deal. What has just happened in Houston ought to spur the process of translating the talk into action.
